COMMODITIES

In the Fall of 1998 Stephen Brieze toured North America presenting a series of seminars he called the Turning Point Tour, advising investors that a major bull market was about to develop in oil and other commodities. This view was controversial, contrarian, and correct. These 3 C's describe the majority of his major market timing calls.

Ten years later, on March 31, 2008, as the dollar collapsed while crude oil and other commodity booms were widely forecast to "go to the moon," Brieze correctly forecast (in a Barron's front-page article <https://goo.gl/p83Req>) that commodity prices would plummet 50%, triggered in part by a major upturn in the dollar. He was proved right by year-end.

CRUDE OIL

On June 19, 2008, as West Texas crude prices approached their all-time high of $147 per bbl and analysts forecasting $200-$300 oil, Brieze called for a plunge to $30.00 (<https://goo.gl/Uovuj8>). Within days oil prices began to collapse and six months later bottomed at $33.

Barron's printed Brieze sells 4 more times over the next 6 years. Then, after Brieze predicted a $20 low, On Dec. 2, 2014, in a segment called Oil Plunge: Who on Wall Street Got it Right?, Fox Business News found only 3. One big bank analyst, and two academics, and: "Steve Brieze, publisher and writer of the Bullish Review of Commodity Insiders newsletter, was also one of the few to currently predict an imminent plunge in oil prices..." GOLD

At the 2011 gold market top, 148 analysts forecasted much higher gold prices, with targets ranging from $2500 to $20,000! Check the list at <https://goo.gl/AXxuLS>

Only 1 analyst correctly predicted an imminent and dramatic downturn: Stephen Brieze. His forecast appeared in Barron's August 27, 2011, days before the market top: <https://goo.gl/dA2vwt>

Brieze, author of The Commitments of Traders Bible (Wiley, 2008) has a reputation as a commodities expert. His calls in currencies, financials, and stock indexes are no less impressive. As one subscriber, who has been a reader for 30 years, put it: "Steve is sometimes early, often very timely, rarely wrong."

ECONOMY

While a handful of market analysts made themselves famous for identifying one aspect of the 2008 financial crisis, Brieze's readers were warned of every major facet (in time to prepare).

- 2007: World-wide financial system is at risk.
- 2007: Triple-digit annual bank failures coming.
- 2007: US recession already here. (November 2007 issue)
- 2006: Stock and real estate bubbles threaten long and hard recession.
- 2004: Credit default swaps are a game of musical chairs.
- 2004: Unprecedented housing bubble growing.
- 2004: Fannie Mae & Freddie Mac gone wild.
- 2004: We will regret the Glass-Steagall repeal.
- 2003: Debt bubble hangs over economy.
- 2003: Derivatives threaten financial system.

STOCK INDEXES

Brieze's major stock market calls over the past quarter century have been impressive.

BITCOIN

Finally forced to cover Bitcoin once it became a futures contract, Brieze spent 3 pages of his December 17, 2017 Insider Money market letter warning his subscribers away from cryptocurrencies, summarizing (the day of the market peak): "Bitcoin has risen 1700%, breaking all modern speculative bubble records. It is, therefore, likely to set a new modern record for post bubble plunges." You don't get much better timing than this.

You won't find Brieze at the Money Show. He prefers research to promotion.
